Due diligence processes for Slavery and Human Trafficking

1. Verification

We regularly undertake appropriate checks in respect our employees and contract workers through CRB checks, referencing and also validation of personal information. We verify the information supplied by carrying out regular audits.

In 2019 we will continue to work with our suppliers to ensure they also maintain a high standard of verification setting out clear expectations of checks and verifications to be completed at every level.

2. Audits

We carry out regular audits in relation to our employees, contract workers and suppliers in order to evaluate any potential breaches. Audit standards are regularly reviewed to ensure that they remain fit for purpose and are compliant.

In 2018 our internal audits reviewed the procedures for undertaking checks in respect of employees and contract workers within our own HR team and with our key labour supplier in our mail sortation depots, transport teams and fulfilment centres. Recommendations for continuous improvement identified based on best practice have been shared and implemented across all labour providers.

In 2019 we will continue to incorporate anti-slavery and human trafficking into audits across key suppliers across our business.

3. Certification

Our business works with our suppliers to certify that they comply with the laws regarding slavery and human trafficking in the country or countries in which they do business.

Throughout 2018 and as a matter of course going forward any supplier who submits an expression of interest to tender or re-tender as a supplier to our business, is issued with an anti-slavery and human trafficking questionnaire. The responses provided are reviewed as a part of annual contract reviews, assessment of proposals and as part of tender decision making.

4. Internal Accountability

We ensure that our employee and contract workers are appropriately notified and communicated to in respect of Whistl's standards and procedures and the implications of failure to comply with the standards regarding slavery and trafficking.

5. Training

All Whistl employees and management who have direct responsibility for supply chain management are provided with the appropriate training on human trafficking and slavery, particularly with respect to mitigating risk within our supply chains.

Awareness training on modern slavery and human trafficking is a part of compliance training for all staff. Completion of this training is required as a part of induction into a new role and through annual refresher training across the business. In 2018, Modern Slavery also featured as a key topic in one of our monthly "Tool box" briefings with staff.

Additional briefings and support materials are available to key staff involved in recruitment, on-boarding, line management and supplier relationship management to ensure appropriate knowledge and skills are available to identify, report and address any areas of concern.

In 2019 we will be revising and refreshing the training support and resources available for recruiting managers and building in new content drawn from best practice from the "Stronger Together" initiative that one of our new key recruitment suppliers in our sortation depots has shared with us.

This statement is made pursuant to Section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes our slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending 31st December 2019.
